saeedeh khoshkho*,

The goal of this research is to analyze the effect of audited financial reporting to Corporate Social Responsibility and the effect of Social Responsibility to market value. Due to this goal, we have used a sample of 93 companies accepted companies at Tehran Stock Exchange and have analyzed the economic consequences of Corporate Social Responsibility through data gathering of this research that are related to the years of study between 2009 and 2015. In this regard, we offer three hypotheses. The first hypothesis suggests no relation between audit quality and Corporate social responsibility of firms is. The second hypothesis suggests that the relationship is a Corporate social responsibility audit fees. But the third hypothesis showed a significant inverse relationship with the corporate Corporate social responsibility of the company's market value. The results showed no significant relationship between audit quality and audit fees is a social responsibility.
