
Analysis of the Role of Political Parties in the Parliamentary Elections (Case Study of Langrud City)

Mostafa Mohamadi Fatideh*, dr. parvia rezaee, dr. emran alizadeh,

Today, parties are a precondition for human life in modern times so that one of the institutions Among the most effective influence on the process of decision-making and executive and acts as a link between people and political authority. Societies and political systems far almost complete conference there about the necessity of political parties and party democracy as referred Machine gears. In the Islamic Republic of Iran witnessed the emergence of political parties and groups with ideas and viewpoints after the victory of the Islamic Revolution were, but after three decades of the revolution, no political parties literally institutionalized not, and none of the parties have been unable to work especially true of parties political participation, political socialization, communication, and political parties have been heard repeatedly although the vast majority of them have towed the party's name. Despite the unsuccessful experience of political parties still believe in the necessity of systematic, organized, formal, legitimate and objective still remains. If the sick political parties to improve, obstacles overcome the political parties with the hottest of the elections through ads, debate, dialogue and discussion Drag important issues and problems and solutions, citizens indifferent become responsible citizens and moving and more people are choosing to participate and to provide one of the areas of political development. In this paper, the main research question is that, what role political parties in elections? In response to this question is that hypothesis, the researchers said, by removing obstacles to the establishment and institutionalization of political parties and institutionalized cooperation in the fields provided and one of the substrates political development will be achieved.

Keywords : Keywords: political parties, elections, obstacles to development, political orientation.

