Hamed Asrar Poush*, Mahmoud Alizadeh(PH.D),

Abstract The winner is someone who, due to lack of assets or lack of access to rubbing, is not able to pay the trial (trial fee) or his / her debts. In fact, everyone is condemned to pay the other to another, whether in the form of an extradition or the same price, or the like, or the loss or damage the crime or the Diah, and the court will require him to pay; therefore, the transactions of such persons and Contracts are not binding, and the payer's expense has barriers and limitations. It is obliged to fulfill the obligations of the contract of obligation to fulfill the obligation that it has entered into. But this commitment is not absolute and fulfillment of the obligation is subject to that possibility. If the fulfillment of an obligation is impossible, this obligation will be eliminated because it can not be regarded as impossible and impossible for a committed person. The impossibility of executing the contract may be due to the inability and fault of the parties to the contract, or in any way attributable to them, it is also possible that the parties did not play a role in the circumstances. In other words, the failure to perform the obligation is beyond their will and will. Regarding the decree of how a person is being convicted and what his bargain is, this law has been used, which allows the execution of the basic conditions of the validity of each contract. the point of view of the law, the execution of the contract may have different qualities and forms. Exodus is sometimes permanent and sometimes temporary, sometimes absolute and sometimes relative. Exemptions may come about in part of the subject of the contract, or in relation to all of them. According to the nature and quality of the publication, its impact on the contract will also be different. In British law, these cases are slightly different. This paper examines these issues in Iranian and English law.
