
Ethnography in the travel journal Naser Khosrow Ghobadiyani

Mohammad Zerehpooch Kolesfurooshi*,

Abstract Travelogues reflect a different narrative of the history people trace their views to and different perspectives. One of the remarkable elements in travelogues is ethnography or cultural historiography, which is the most important concern in recognizing issues in the eyes of ordinary people. In this way, ethnography or the history of publicity, unofficial documents, letters, daily notes and travel logs are important and provide information about the daily lives of people. Ethnography refers to the context of cities, customs and culture, agriculture, and economics, and some of this kind of attention, and descriptions of buildings, cities, forms of people's lives, coverage, dialect, nutrition, occupations, language, etc. Information Provides valuable value to researchers. This thesis explains the importance and role of ethnographic writing in Nasser Khosrow's travelogue. Key words: Nasser Khosrow, Travelogue, Ethnography.
