

The role of emotional intelligence components and spiritual intelligence in predicting male abusive behaviors

Seyed Mohammad Shafiee kalangastani*, Iraj shakerinia,

Abstract Male abusive behaviors are one of the main problems that greatly reduce marital compromise and marital satisfaction among couples, in which the components of emotional intelligence and spiritual intelligence play an essential role in preventing such behaviors. The purpose of this study was to determine the role of emotional intelligence components and spiritual intelligence in predicting male abusive behaviors. The present study was a descriptive correlational and predictive equation. The statistical population of this study consisted of all men referring to the counseling center of the welfare ministry of Rasht in the last quarter of 1396 in a sample of 200 people. Of these, 140 samples were ed according to the Morgan table and accessible by sampling method. The questionnaire Baran's Emotional Intelligence (1980), King's Spiritual Intelligence (2008), and Domestic Violence (Piranqash Tehrani, 2005). Data were analyzed using Pearson correlation coefficient and stepwise regression. There is a negative and significant relationship between the total score of emotional intelligence and spiritual intelligence and their components with male husband abusive behaviors (P
