Meysam Rahmatikhah Masuleh*, Dr. Marziyeh Kazemzadeh,

The core of the dissertation was based on the growing expansion of the tourism industry and tourism in the world and its transformation into a successful industry and with the growing need of Iran to expand tourism with natural and artificial potential. In the world in which we live, The greatness and greatness that every day becomes smaller due to the means of mass communication and the dialogue between different civilizations and cultures, it is no longer possible to conquer the tangent of the indigenous culture. History has shown that every culture, and even a society, must survive and advance itself beyond and beyond the known borders, and it is no longer condemned to destruction. The motivation for this comment can be curiosity, the liberation the fatigue of everyday life and gaining. And knowledge and information, news and dialogue, and the exchange of supervision, recreation and leisure, and so on. To this open mind and culture, to prepare for the absorption of new elements and the ability to talk and exchange, which is in Following is the breadth, the development of cultural and social progress, and ultimately the travel. The land of Iran, the land of myths of Thousand and One Nights, the land of myths and imaginative lands of historical monuments and unique and in one word the land of poetry and architecture have long been considered by visitors in this treatise, the design of the tourist and recreational complex as One of the strategies and facilities that can be considered for tourism attraction and development of tourism industry. The purpose of this thesis is to consider indigenous and regional values (context-oriented approach) in designing a tourist complex located in Gilan, Makloun village.. The research is based on the assumption that it is believed that achieving a plan that, while responding to everyday needs of users, has aesthetic and cultural aspects influenced by the climate and the land.
