

A Survey on the Performance of Ahmadinejad and Rouhani Governments in Political Development Policy in Iran in 2005-2017

Seyede Safoora Safavi*,

In this research, we are trying to study the theoretical foundations (definitions, theories and history, political development and modern politics, etc.) and the main question (why the performance of Ahmadinejad and Rouhani's governments in implementing policies of political development in Iran was different). We provide a meaningful and meaningful understanding of the issue of political development. There are various definitions of political development. The purpose of political development in this study is the political participation of elites and political institutions with regard to the comparative approach and the classification of political institutions, so it is necessary to focus more on political culture, political elites and political institutions. The main purpose of the research is to determine the relationship between the attitudes of elites and the persistent political institutions in the Ahmadinejad and Rouhani governments based on the theoretical model of Bashiria and Huntington. The two governments have entered politics with different indicators and policies, and with the study of the activities of Ahmadinejad and Rouhani, we have come to the conclusion that the policies of the ninth and tenth governments of the populist approach and the creation of limitations for the civil institution and anti-political development And Rouhani's government was trying to change the previous course and to engage in institutional engagement and competition. Each has encountered an indeterminate position, we have been looking at the history of the subject to solve this problem in order to guess the factors potentially causing the problem to occur. In this study, we use the method of analogy and induction, and according to the data that has been said in the term of political development and theoretical foundations.
