

Pathology of Islamic Parliamentary Elections in Rasht (Ninth and Tenth Courses)

Naghi Sharifi Pashtiri*,

Elections are one of the components of political participation and the conditions for the realization of democracy, so that the main focus of political participation is electoral participation, the election is a series of actions and coherent operations that are carried out within a specific and limited geographical range. And leads to the ion of the individual or individuals or a particular issue by the majority of the people. The electoral process in the Islamic Republic of Iran, with its importance and place in the realization of democracy, has always faced with challenges and challenges, and these challenges are also generalized to provincial and provincial dimensions. The study of the damage and pest in the electoral process is called the Pathology of the Elections. Therefore, the author in this thesis uses descriptive-analytical method, library studies and field surveys through a questionnaire and distribute it between The statistical population is the question of "the damage of the parliamentary elections in the city of Rasht (9th and 10th grades)". The pathology of the Islamic Consultative Assembly elections in the city of Rasht (ninth and tenth grades) has been sought. Research findings suggest heavy election spending and unrealistic propaganda in the form of: the creation of a youth clubs club (instrumental use), the launch of a night carnival, an excellence in the candidate's resume and education, an obscene election campaign (congratulations, remarks Such as the sending of links, etc.), the lack of transparency of election campaign finances, and the destruction of rivals and rivals in the form of elements of promoting untrustworthy and fictitious news through nocturnal speeches, providing rigorous speeches against competitors in the meetings, Accusing executive committees and overseeing factionalism, exposing prominent sponsors and spending funds

Keywords : Pathology, Electoral Damage, Parliamentary Elections, Rasht County

Islamic Azad University, Rasht Branch - Thesis Database

