

Investigating the Jurisprudential Traditions of Sheikh Sadduq

Fereshteh Hassanzadeh Sabet Jurshari*,

Fiqh Al-Hadith jurisprudence reviews the text of news and hadiths and offers rules that can be better understood the traditions of the Prophet (peace be upon him) and the Imams (as). Sheikh Sadduq (Ra) is one of the great Shiite scholars who has studied the Fiqh Al-hadith in his works. In the field of hadith in general and in the field of hadith criticism in particular, he has metrics and criteria that incorporate approaches and models as a roadmap and a model for his work. Narratives have been plagued by divisions and conflicts as a result of forgery or neglect or oral narration and the disappearance of narratives and other factors. This has led Sheikh Sadduq to try to resolve them in various ways, and he has used various methods for resolving conflicts in his book, which have been reported in this study. As it turned out, Sheikh Sadduq has focused on many jurisprudential points in his book, one of the most important of which is dealing with the conflict and narrating disputes, while devising and presenting numerous possibilities and possibilities in this field. He has attempted to summarize the reasons between them when the narrations are in conflict, and to actually reject them in the least. In fact, by gathering similar and concurrent hadiths together, the Sheikh made it possible to observe the conflict of narrations more than ever before, and finally he was able to discern their apparent and real differences, the divisions of the versions, the general and specific, the constraints, the cases of taqiyyeh ...
